All the Pomp and Magnificence of the Sastern Church, With its Processions and Solemn Liturgies Will Be Employed.

(Ry Associated Press.)

ET. PETERSBURG, July 29.—The ceremonics at the monastery at Saroff promise to be very interesting. The relics of St. Seraphim will be exposed for advantion after five days of religious exercises. These relics have been installed in a solid silver casket beneath a silver baidachin. The expense of the installation was borne by the Emperor from his private purse, and Itis Majesty testified his interest by writing the following marginal note on the act of canonization. "Read with feelings of genuine pleasure and deep emotion."

The monastery which is the scene of the ceremonial is a woman's asylum, several miles from the village of Saroff, and forty miles from the nearest railway station.

The attendance includes the imperial way station.

The attendance includes the imperial family and court, with many officials and mulitudes of pilgrims. Temporary barracks have been erected to shelter the more favored guests, but the great majority of the pilgrims will be forced to sleep in stables or in the open air.

The Holy Synod has issued a staterhent that it remarks the "appearance of a new miraculous intercessor as a renewal of Heaven's blessing upon the government of our most exalted monarch, who labors unceasingly for the welfare of the orthodox Russian people and embraces in his royal love and care all of his true subjects, of every class and condition." station.

St. Seraphim entered the monastery of Saroff when only seventeen years old. There he distinguished himself in all religious exercises, even carrying a great granite rock into his cell in order that his knees might not rest easily durids his long prayers. Later in life he spent fitteen years in silent meditation, during which time he did not leave his hermit's cell except when absolutely necessary. When he resumed intercourse with the world all classes of people flocked to him for advice. It is said that he answered questions before they were put, and letters that he never unscaled; that he revealed the inmost secrets of the heart and forecold future events. Since his death many millions of pilgrims have visited the grave.

DEFENDS ADMINISTRATION

Colonial Secretary Chamberlain Replies to Mr. Markham.

LONDON, July 36,-in the House of Commons to-day during the discussion of the Colonial Office voto, replying to a bitter attack on the government's policy and Lord Milner's administration of South Africa by Mr. Markham, Liberal, in the ceurse of which he charged that affairs were growing worse, Colonial Becretary Chamberlain defended at some length the administration of South Africa. He said the greatest difficulty was not the reconciliation of the Boers and Britons, but the reconciliation of the Boers with the Boers.

Mr. Chamberlain admitted that much remained to be done, and said that if it was found that the work of pacification was prevented by irreconciliables, the government would not hesitate to use its strong power to deport the mischief-

On Saturday afternoon, when King Charles and the royal princes will visit the American warships, Admiral Cotton will entertain the King and his party at lancheon on board the Brooklyn. High court, military, naval and civil officials and the foreign naval attaches will be present.

The Portuguese papers are referring approvingly to the speech made by ring. Charles when he received Admiral Cotton and the other American officers and entertained them at the royal castle at Cintra on Monday last. His Maiesty exprovingly to the speech made by Aing Charles when he received Admiral Cotton and the other American officers and entertained them at the royal castle at Cintra on Monday last. His Majesty expressed himself in such sympathetic terms in regard to President Roosevelt and the people of the United States that Minister Bryan, Admiral Cotton and the other Americans present were really affected by the King's remarks.

The papers also are mentioning gratefully the speech delivered by Admiral Cotton at the banquet Tucsday night, given in honor of the American naval others by the ministry of marine, at which all the Cabinet ministers were present. His eulogies referring to Portugal are much appreciated by the papers.

At Recess, where their Majestics stopped for incheon, an extraordinary incident occurred. A poer old woman approached the Queen with a petition for the remission of the remainder of a sentence of six months passed upon her husband. Inquiries proved that the man's character justified elemency, and the Queen, with the King's permission, remitted the sentence on the spot. The surrounding crowd learning what had occurred, cheered wildly.

and by standing under a large awning that had been orected near a big tree. This awning had been used by Messrs. Beasley & Morris for a confectionery stand and it was located about twenty-five yards from the church.

From the appearance of the cloud it was evident that a severe shower was threatened. A hundred or more men and boys gathered under the awning and the big shade tree, and a number of them raised their umbrellas as an additional protection from the downpour, The rainfall was heavy, and every one outdoors was trying to keep dry without giving a thought to the danger of standing under a tree during a thunder storm.

BLINDING FLASH.

BLINDING FLASH.

The shower had reached its height and it looked as if it were soling to pass away without serious mishap, when all at once there was a blinding flash of lightning and a terrific crash of thunder. The discharge of the electric fluid and the burst of thunder came simultaneously. For a moment after the flash there was absolute silence, and then pandemonium proke loose. At least thirty men lay on the ground beneath the tree and awaing, and it looked at first as if all of them had been killed. BLINDING FLASH,

STORM WAS FORGOTTEN.

No one paid the least attention to the storm, which was raging in all its fury. Every one was endeavoring to find out who had been killed and injured. When something like quiet had been restored, and a systematic effort made to attend to the injured, it was found that three men had been killed outright and a number of others seriously and dangerously hurt. Several of those who were injured will not recover.

The association was drawfag to a close and was to have adourned whi the afternoon session. People had gathered from far and near to attend the services, which were to have been commenced a short while after the time that the storm began. The fearful havoc wrought by the lightning broke up the services and brought the association to a sad and untimely close. No attempt was made to continue the meeting, but after everything possible had been done for the killed and injured, the crowd dispersed, taking with them a memory that will perhaps never fade.

Of the thirty men who had been stricken to the ground by the charge of electricity three were killed outright, and three-Morris, Turns and Wright-were so badly injured that there is hardly a chance for their recovery. The injuries of many of the others are of a most serious character.

The one alleviating force was a strong southern breeze, which was a power to bring comfort provided one could get it. But all could not do this, and had, in consequence, to swelter. But the afternoon brought a measure of relief. The wind took charge of things, particularly the dust in the street, and hurled it at pedestrians with bilinding force and fiendish delight. The thunders rolled and lightnings flashed. Shortly thereafter the rain came down in a pretty shower and the dust problem was settled, and there was a rise in umbrelias. The grand stand States Senator Thomas S. Martin occupied a seat on the front tier and discussed events of the show ring with a coterie of friends. The morning was chiefly taken in judging youngsters and brood stock, hence the afternoon's work was probably the most interesting to the spectators, though the park saddle class show just before lunch time was made up of quite a select lot, and when Robin Adalr was awarded the blue ribbon there was prolonged applause, as the son of Tecumsen is a gener The afternoon session was n
